Associate or Full Professor and Chair, Department of Comparative Medicine

University of Washington: Academic Personnel: School of Medicine: Chairs - School of Medicine

The University of Washington, Department of Comparative Medicine (DCM) is accepting applications for Chair and Associate or Full Professor. This position will participate in institutional administration, clinical, research, departmental management/finance and teaching activities. The individual will have principal responsibility for management of clinical/pathology and teaching/training activities within the DCM. Close interaction with the DCM Animal Science group will occur in addition to other service-based cost centers within DCM. In addition, there will be substantial responsibilities directed toward regulatory compliance efforts including assuring departmental compliance with Public Health Service (PHS) and United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) guidelines while maintaining AAALAC International Accreditation. As the University of Washington is a major research institution, there will also be an expectation for research, either principal or collaborative. The position requires a DVM or VMD (or foreign equivalent) from an AVMA-accredited School of Veterinary Medicine, and at least 10 years of strong and relevant regulatory experience and clinical skills. University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research, and service. For full description of the position and to apply: https://apply.interfolio.com/133234. EO employer – M/F/Vets/Disabled